

Cookie policy

Introduction: When you visit our website we may automatically collect information about you through small files which are placed and stored on your device. These files are known as cookies.

Our cookies: We use two types of cookies: 1. Essential: These are required for our site to work. If you set your browser to block these cookies then our website may not work properly; and 2. Performance: These allow us to analyse how our site is being used so we can make changes to help improve it, for example, the number of visitors to each webpage and the number of people viewing our site on a phone or tablet.

Third party cookies: Third party organisations also collect information about you when you visit our website through their own cookies and other technology, for example, Facebook or Google Analytics. These organisations have their own privacy policies, and we have no access to read or write their cookies.

Managing cookies: To decide what cookies your browser does and does not accept you will need to review your cookie settings. You can usually find these settings in the Options or Preferences menu of your browser. However, if you disable all cookies then our website may not work correctly and you may have to manually adjust some preferences every time you visit.

If you want to manage third party advertising cookies, you can turn these off by going to the Your Online Choices site.

Further queries: Please consult our Privacy policy if you have any further queries regarding how we treat personal information. If you have any queries regarding this policy please email info@thewall.ie with your query. Please put "Cookies query", in the subject bar and mark the query for the attention of the "Wall's Data Protection Officer".
